

What do you need to play a piano?

A piano of course!
And a bench to get comfortable in proper position.
And you need YOU!

What parts of you do you need? Let's see...

- 2 arms reaching out to the keys
- 10 fingers (5 on each hand) to press them down
- 2 eyes to see and read the music
- 2 ears to hear what you played
- 2 legs to keep you from falling off the bench
- 2 feet to tap to the rhythm (and for future pedaling)
- 1 big smile for learning to play and a voice to sing along!
- 1 brain, but it's hiding, so we'll warm it with hair. Your brain is the control center that makes all of your parts properly work so that you can learn and make music!
